SPECIAL CONSIDERATION POLICY

Special Consideration

Special considerations are measures taken to remove or reduce the negative effects of a disadvantage that occurs to the learner either just before or during the assessment.

Examples of situations for special consideration include but are not limited to,

- Illness
- Accident
- Bereavement (loss of spouse, children or sibling)

Exemptions from special considerations

Special consideration shall not be given in the case of a permanently disability or learning difficulty.

Applications for special considerations shall be made on a case by case basis. Thus, separate applications shall be made for each learner.

Learners may apply for special consideration during or after an assessment. The extent of the adjustment will depend on the actual circumstances during the assessment and the level of difficulty faced by the learner.
